FAIRMONT DANCE

A Great Success in Every Respect --Turn 'er Loose

As was expected the dance given by Mr. and Mrs. S. Brewer at Fairmont Springs last Friday evening was a great success in every respect, there being people present from nearly every point between Golden and Thunder Hill, a distance of 100 miles, and a few were present from still more distant points.

It was not much after noon on Friday that the first load of pleasure-seekers arrived at "Fairmont Castle" and were heartily welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Brewer and their only son Hope. At this Castle no formalities are indulged in, but friend and stranger alike is given a royal reception. Before the team could stop Mr. Brewer ran out shouting: "Here they come! Turn 'er loose!" And with extended arms to the ladies and a hearty hand-shake for the men said: "The latch-string will always be found on the outside of the Castle." Mrs Brewer, too, was out quickly to welcome her guests and in her kind, motherly way left no doubt as to her desire that every person should feel quite at home. All afternoon the people came straggling in with wagons, buggies and saddle horses and some in canoes. By six o'clock the stables and sheds were full of horses, and the road for quarter of a mile strewn with vehicles. Yet, still they came, and kept coming until after 10 o'clock.

As everybody knows Mr. Brewer has an ideal ranch and he has successfully grown fourteen crops of apples. It is 24 years since this happy couple first came to this valley and 20 years ago they built their first house just where the new one stands today. In fact, the stone foundation of the new house was built around the old house before it was torn down. Their new home is a two-story building 43 by 22 feet, with a large kitchen leanto. The first floor is divided into a fine large sitting room and a parlor and two bed rooms, all most comfortably furnished. The second floor had not yet been partitioned as it had been left until after the dance. The building is a very substantial one, being built of evenly hewed fir timber and plastered throughout, making it very comfortable at all seasons of the year. The location of the Castle must be seen to be appreciated. It stands on a little eminence close to a cool mountain creek, the land sloping gently to the road and on through well cultivated fields to the lake. Behind it the majestic Rocky Mountains tower up many thousand feet in unequalled splendour. On one side the orchard, with its trees loaded with delicious fruit, gives it a beautiful home-like effect; while on the other the natural park of fine, large fir trees leads to the scene the natural beauty that city folk rave about.

A bountiful dinner was served in the dining room and much appreciated by the guests as they arrived, and while this was in progress Captain Cantley arrived in full Scotch regalia, accompanied by Piper Stevens playing his sweetest music on the bagpipes. This put everybody in motion and shortly after 7 o'clock Prof. and Mrs. Troyer had their orchestra going and the first number on the long program was called; Sam shouted "Turn 'er loose!" and the merry dance was on. Fun, there was no end to it. There were no stops, as quickly as one dance ended another was started and if the musicians tired others took their place. From the very outset it was evident that all were bent on having a good time and every one simply had to dance, whether they had ever tried before or not made no difference—up they had to get and make a try at it. But, perhaps, the most fun came when the ladies were allowed their choice and several of them chose partners among the Indians, who ventured in to see the whites pow-wow. The dusky gentlemen protested in vain, but one handsome fellow was allowed off as he explained his costume only consisted of a blanket and asked time to go for his trousers. However, the ladies succeeded in selecting partners to make up a set, and the Indians enjoyed the fun as much as any person. There were novelty dances to no end and space alone forbids an attempt to describe them, yet the "Highland-fling" as danced by Piper Stevens is worthy of special mention. At midnight a luncheon was served that was never before equalled in the valley and heartily partaken of. After the feast dancing was again resumed and continued with wonderful enthusiasm until the sun rose and bathed the distant snow-capped peaks in gorgeous beauty. Then Mr. H. G. Parson in a very neat and appropriate speech submitted a motion thanking Mr. and Mrs. Brewer for their kind hospitality and wishing them many years of happiness in their new home, which was seconded by Mr. C. Cameron and carried by three mighty cheers and a tiger. In replying Mr. Brewer thanked his friends for their kind expressions and hoped they would not forget where Brewers lived and come to see them often. He hoped they were not going home yet for he expected the dance to last a week. He had killed a steer with that expectation and if that was not enough he would kill another one if they would stay. Then all joined in singing, "They are Jolly Good Fellows", and the dance was ended, but the fun was by no means over. Every rig had been decorated with all manner of curios during the night and tricks of all kinds were indulged in as each party left.

It was difficult to count exactly how many were present, but there were fully 100 people there. Following is an incomplete list of the guests:

DISTRICT CROPPINGS

And Other Items of Interest in a General Way

Ed. Bell and Wm. Harrison of Athalmer are reported to have made a very important strike just above the Soda Springs on Toby creek. While hunting they ran on to a ledge which they traced several hundred feet up the mountain. They procured an old, broken pick and with it uncovered a streak of fine steel galena ore about eight inches wide. After gathering up some splendid looking specimens they came to town to record their claims and to get appliances to thoroughly prospect their new find. Large pieces of float have often been picked up in the vicinity and many a prospector has spent days seeking this ledge. Much interest is taken in this strike and further development is expected to prove satisfactory. Messrs. Bell and Harrison are wished every success by their friends.

W. Taupt came down last week from the Tecumseh mine, on McDonald creek, and stated he had already packed down to the road all the ore he intends to ship this season and would start this week to haul it to the river. He is not shipping as much ore this season as he first intended as he says to do so would hinder him in getting up supplies and preparing for work in the winter.

Wm. Springer, a well-known West Kootenay mining man, arrived on the Ptarmigan Saturday to report on several mining properties in this camp for Messrs. Finch & Campbell, the Spokane capitalists who have done so much good work in the Slocan. Mr. Springer is now up Toby creek examining the Black Diamond and other mines, and will remain some time.

P. Michelson came down from the Black Diamond Friday rather badly "leaded" and is forced to take a much-needed rest. He reports the mine never looked better.

The Ptarmigan took down another car load of the Nettie M. ore on Sunday.

Columbia river is getting low and navigation difficult.

Miss Snook left Sunday for her home in Truro, N.S., and Fred now has no happy home.

The wise prospectors will soon be in search of white metal in many parts of North East Kootenay.

Mrs. Stoddart and her little daughter left Windermere last week for the Coast cities, on an extended visit.

Thos. Martin has leased the Athalmer Hotel dining room and took charge of it yesterday. Success to you, Tom.

G. A. Starke went up to the Nettie M. mine on Monday and is expected down today with Mrs. Washburn and children, who will reside in Wilmer.

The largest gold nuggets ever found were the Welcome and the Welcome Stranger. The first, weighing 2,217 ounces, was found in Ballarat, Victoria; and the second, 2,268 ounces in weight, was found at Dunnolly, Victoria, in 1869. In both cases the fortunate finder netted over $40,000 by one turn of the pick.

H. Grainger brought his wife down to Windermere from Findlay creek and Sunday took the steamer for Golden, where she will enter the hospital to undergo an operation. Mrs. Grainger war very ill and the trip from Findlay creek was very hard one for her. Her many friends hope she will recover speedily.

R. S. Gallop last week presented The Outcrop with a quantity of delicious, big, rosy apples, some very tasty crab apples and a few choice plums, grown in his young orchard at Canterbury. Mr Gallop is justly proud of the success he has met with in the few trees he has planted, and it is wonderful the amount of fruit some of his trees bear.

A. R. Yates, Wilmer's leading druggist and popular post master, left on the Ptarmigan Sunday for Gleichen, Alberta, where he has arranged to open a drug store in the heart of that great cow camp. Every one of his numerous friends wish Mr. Yates great success in his new venture and hope that he will reach the million dollar mark that he is striving for, and which his ability and good management is certain to win if the opportunity arises. For several weeks past his friends have in many ways tried to convey to him their regrets of his departure by numerous little private house parties as well as the public dance given in Athalmer hall and previously mentioned in these columns. Mr. Yates is a popular young man with the ladies as well as as the men and there is not a home in the valley where he was not a welcomed visitor and where his visits will not be missed. Therefore, it is not surprising that a large crowd of friends went down to the landing to see him off and express their best wishes for his future welfare. Mr. Yates is a very proficient druggist and chemist and to his credit the post office inspector stated that the Wilmer post office was the best managed office in all British Columbia. Thus we lose not only a very popular young man but a good business man, and Gleichen is the gainer. Mr. Yates had only one reason for leaving and that was that this is altogther too healthly a climate for the drug business. He says that when people came here for their health they bought no medicine and needed none. They simply drank large quantities of our ozone and looked at our scenery and went away cured. He said he never was used better in his life than here and keenly regretted to have to leave his friends and the valley, yet this healthy climate made it quite necessary for him to locate where drugs were in greater demand. It may be hard on Gleichen folks, yet The Outcrop joins his many friends in wishing Mr. Yates great success in that flourishing, new town.

BRISCO NEWSLETS

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mrs. A. H. Mitchell of Fortress ranch, Brisco, has sold from January 1st to September 10th, 300 dozen eggs, and used 170 dozen on the ranch. These are the product of 50 Rose-combed Brown Leghorns. Besides this the same hens raised 100 chickens. By keeping account of the feed used it was found that each hen, not counting the chickens raised, made a profit of $2 each for the nine months of this year.

Farmers have commenced getting in their winter supplies.

It is understood that a good wagon road will be built from Bott's Landing to the Lead Queen mine. All that is needed to make this property a steady shipper is the road. There are hundreds of tons of ore on the dump. The Lead Queen is owned by Thomas Brown and partners, and is considered by mining men to be one of the best properties in the Kootenays. It is a steel galena proposition.

Cattle on the ranges never looked better.

Tourists are flocking to the valley like bees to a flower garden, or tramps to a free lunch counter.

Harvest is over: the fun is ended; the work is done. Not for another year will we hear the joyous sounds of the mower as it circles the fields. The yield, both in wheat, oats, barley, and hay was good, and the price of juicy fodder promises to reach the high water mark this fall.

Percy Allsup is confined to his bed this week with sickness.

Farmers are busy building fences, putting up barns, corrals, outbuildings, etc., and everywhere one can hear the click-knack of the hammer, the whirr-birr of the saw, and soon will hear the chew, chew, tobacker of the iron horse switching in cars to carry off the product of the garden, orchard and field, of the Columbia Valley, to the less favored districts of the world.

A good story is told in the current issue of Wilhelm's Magazine, of Hon. F. W. Aylmer of Golden, B.C., relating to the early days when Mr. Aylmer came to the Pacific west in charge of a body of surveyors of the Canadian Pacific Railroad and was widely known as the "Hon. Frank Aylmer." One day while the men were at dinner eating ordinary camp fare three rowdy lumberjacks came into the camp and asked to see the man in charge. Being told that he was "the Hon. Frank Aylmer" they became very insulting and loquacious. "Frank Aylmer—the Honorable Frank Aylmer!" the largest one in the crowd exclaimed in a sneering tone of voice, "the Honorable Frank Aylmer! Point him out to me that I can get a good look at him! Who is this honorable Frank Aylmer?" A gentleman of husky, manly proportions jumped up from his seat at the table and confronted them. "Who are you?" the rowdy asked. "I am the Honorable Frank Aylmer," he replied and then proceeded in true Canadian style to thrash the three of them. At first, the main rowdy's companions went to step in and help out their comrade, but the boys in the camp compelled them to desist and he finished up the three of them in succession. Mr. Aylmer today lives in Golden and is one of the town's highly esteemed and respected citizens, numbering his friends by the score.—Nelson Daily News.

WILMER, B.C., THURSDAY, SEPT. 20, 1906.

The Slocan Mining Review has come to the front again and Sandon now has a larger newspaper than it ever had. Under new management the Review starts off with a fair paystreak of ads. and a wide lead of news. May the Review outlive the combined ages of its many predecessors and receive the patronage its first issue so much merits. Here is the Review's slogan: "The Silvery Slocan first, last, and all the time. We'll stay till the cows come home."

James Hill, discussing the future of British Columbia in terms of utmost enthusiasm is quoted as saying: The farther north, a given fruit, a given grain, a given race, the better the quality of each. For this reason B. C. would, before long, be recognized as producing the finest fruits in the world. A beginning had been made in the Okanagan and Kootenay districts with good results which have considerably increased and made their mark in the world. Grow your fruit, work your magnificent land, and all the railways you want will be added unto you.

A subscriber once received a dun through the mail, and it made him angry. He went to see the editor about it, and the editor showed him a few dons of his own—one for paper, one for type, one for fuel and several others. "Now," said the editor, "I didn't get mad when these came because I knew that all I had to do was to ask several reliable gentlemen like you to come and help me out and then I could settle all of them." When the subscriber saw how it was he relented, paid up, and renewed for another year. The Outcrop is now getting in a winter's supply of paper, etc., and would ask those who are receiving "invitations" from us to seriously consider the above and reply as soon as it is possible.

It is often said that the public is non-appreciative of those who seek to do it service. In truth it must be said there are many apparent confirmations of this fallacy. But, in no case, has the public failed, in the end, to do full justice to those who have given up any part or all of their efforts and work to its needs. The causes of this slowness on the public's side to realize actual good faith in its behalf are not difficult of explanation for so many false calls are made upon its fealty, that it is no wonder it often waits for time to set the seal of sureness upon those who look for its support. The public may be slow to take stock in protestations of good faith but it is very quick in detecting those which ring true, once it is assured their place is in the scale of sincerity. Consequently, in the end, the good proposition, be it whatever you please, wins out from an enduring standpoint, says the New York Mining Topics.

It is evident that the post office officials are determined upon making the mail service from the south of as little use to the people as it is possible, and they have succeeded to the extent that it is nothing more than a mere local, whereas it could be made almost equal to the northern.

During the summer months the Cranbrook service is not so much noticed, owing to the steamer carrying an extra mail. Yet even in the summer it is not utilized to the extent it should be, and now that it will be only a few weeks until navigation closes it is the proper time to direct the attention of the proper officials once more to the improvement that they can easily effect.

There is no reason why all the mail from the south should not come by the Cranbrook route, nor why the mails from the east and west should not come by it three days of each week.

Many cases could be cited by people here showing that letters and papers plainly marked "Via Cranbrook" have come by Golden, and thereby from one day to a week's time lost in their delivery.

Here is one instance: The Nelson Daily News of August 30th, coming by Revelstoke and Golden reached this office Sept. 8th—just nine days after it was posted in Nelson. A Cranbrook friend sent us a copy of the News of the same date and it reached here Sept. 2. Thus it is seen that a saving of six days time can be made.

This one instance should suffice to induce the powers that be to remedy the present conditions.

Things Japan Has Not.

In a book on Japan Douglas Staden recounts the things that the Japanese have not. They have no bread, no beds, no boots and shoes, no trousers for the men, no petticoats for the women. This sounds alarming, but both sexes wear instead several dressing gowns, one over the other—the kimono of commerce. In their houses they have no windows, no doors, no walls, no ceilings, no chests of drawers, not even a washing stand, and the wardrobe is only a lot of boxes piled one on top of another. In the kitchens they have no range, no pots, no pans, no flour bins, no flour, no kitchen tables. But, then, they have no tables or chairs in the drawing room, and in the real native house the drawing room itself is only a lot of bedrooms with their walls taken down. There is no reason why you should find anything in a Japanese house except mats and a charcoal stove for warming your fingers and the teapot and committing suicide. Japan is full of cherry trees and plum trees, but they do without fruit. The cherries are used for the blossoms and the plums for hanging poems on.

Men and Animals in Water.

The animal has no advantage in any way in water over man, and yet the man drowns, while the animal swims. The dog, the horse, the cow and even the cat all take to the water and are able to walk as they do when out of water. Throw a dog into the stream, and at once he begins to walk just as he does on dry land. Why should a man, woman or child act differently under like circumstances?
It seems strange that people have to be told to do what the animals do instinctively and instantly. Man's ignorance of so simple a thing as treading water is remarkable. It is without reason or excuse. There is a popular notion afloat that in some way the dog and other animals have an advantage over man in water. Nothing could be further from the truth. The advantage lies with man, who is provided with a paddle formed hand and knows enough to float when tired, something the animal rarely or never does.

Ancient Sports Among the Hebrews.

Pigeons as letter carriers, tradition tells us, were employed at the time when Joshua invaded Palestine as mediums of communication between headquarters and camps in lands far off on the other side of the Jordan. At the time of the Talmud they were used in amusing games. The Talmud tells us that betting was indulged in at the pigeon play. The owner of the pigeon which reached first the point designated was the winner.
Another play connected with betting was the kubya. Kubya means a small pot (Arabic kubeia, small glass). The kubya was a little pot wherein dice were shaken and thrown upon the table. The dice were numbered as our modern ones are. Against these two games the Talmud was in arms, and their players were not allowed to appear as witnesses before the bar.

Columbus and the Gulf Stream.

It is curious to note in the history of the gulf stream how great its influence has been on the fortunes of the new world. Before the discovery of America strange woods and fruits were frequently found on the shores of Europe and off lying islands. Some of these were seen and examined by Columbus, and to his thoughtful mind they were confirming evidence of the fact that strange lands were not far to the westward. These woods were carried by the gulf stream and by the prevailing winds from the American continent, so that in part the gulf stream is responsible for the discovery of the new world.

Washing Off the Russian.

England is always glad to get another victim, but sometimes she goes about it in a strange manner, according to the Springfield Republican. A sailor deserted from a Russian battleship and joined an English crew on a factory island. He told them that he was tired of the rule of the czar and wanted to become an English citizen. They were at a loss how to naturalize him, but finally each one threw a bucket of water on him and so washed off the Russian.

A Tart Retort.

In arguing a case in an English court the late Frederic Rene Coudert, whose wit was rapier-like, took occasion to deprecate the legal learning of Lord Chancellor Fitzgibbon, whom his opponent was quoting. The trial judge took timid exception to this. "I have read his opinions," he said, "and I have often wished I knew as much law as he did." "I wish you did!" retorted Coudert.

The Trouble.

"I wonder why Mr. Oldbow goes to see Miss Frocks after she has rejected him so emphatically," remarked Hojack.
"Just to pass away the time," suggested Tomdik.
"But the reason he was refused was that he had already passed away too much time."

Rather Deeply.

"Does young Squiggles go much into society?"
"Not now. But he did when he first came here. He got into it about $2,700, thanks to his pleasing manners and his power of touch."

Paying For It.

"Before I was married," said the condemned pessimist, "I spent my money on candy, and as the result I now have to spend it on my wife's dentist bills."

Nothing is politically right which is morally wrong.—O'Connell.

A party of prospectors, who have inspired sufficient confidence to get a grub-stake are searching for the historic "Lost Confidence Mine" in the bottom of Death Valley. This is the only mine in the known world whose entrance is below sea-level. This mine was discovered nearly half a century ago, and a prosperous camp grew up around it. The white outlaws compelled the miners to abandon the place, and for many years it remained the headquarters of these bandits. Numerous parties have searched for the rich mine, and few of them returned.

That there is rich ore in the Guanajuato district, Mexico, is well known to persons familiar with the mines there, but some of the things told are so suggestive of Arabian Nights narratives that considerable salt is required to assist in swallowing them. Concerning a strike recently made in the Penguico mine, E. J. Kimball writes the New York Mining Topics that the vein is so soft that no powder is used. The ore is shoveled out, he says, adding that in 24 hours just previous to the writing of his letter four men, two at day and two at night, employed in sinking the main shaft, extracted 30 tons of ore worth more than $16,000.

Women Visitors Barred

The Mexican who works in mines has a pronounced aversion to working in a mine that has been entered by a woman. His prejudice amounts almost to a superstition. It is so strong that on one occasion, some years ago, it nearly caused one of the biggest mines in Mexico to go out of business. The wife of the American superintendent was allowed to enter and inspect the mine, but every miner quit work, and it was with much difficulty that the fellows were induced to return. It was explained to them that the rule did not apply to American women. The miners were not very easily convinced of that, however, and rumors are to the effect that some of the argument used in getting them to return to the mine was more practical than that laid down in the text book on logic.

The superstition is explained by one student of Mexican antiquities as a result of what was the first labor strike that ever occurred in a mine on the American continent. This strike took place during the reign of Moctezuma II., and affected one of the districts which furnished a large part of the gold and silver for the royal treasure chest. Moctezuma sent an outfit of women to replace the mal content miners. Of course, the feminine scabs did not achieve great success, and the miners knew it; but they were not satisfied in the knowledge that the business was being carried on at a loss. They sought to further avenge themselves on the insult and caused a part of the roof of the mine to cave in on the women, causing most of them to perish. This was a great victory for the strikers, and Moctezuma decided to accede to their demands for higher wages. But the miners now grew decidedly haughty and refused to go back to work. The managing committee met and issued an edict that no miner should ever re-enter the mine where the women had died. At this point Moctezuma sent another gang of men to work in the mine, but every one that entered perished.
